

【Abstract】 In recent years, some descendants of the Jewish community of Kaifeng are trying to recover their Jewish identity and Judaism as well. In addition, a young descendant of Kaifeng Jews has even decided to become the Chinese Rabbi. In this paper, the author has discussed the background of this unique situation as well as the reasons. It is concluded that the rise of future Chinese Rabbi is the consequence of the interaction between subjective cultural emotion and objective factors. Although its development tendency is difficult to predict, it has brought about a new research perspective for cross culture studies.
